

2011 SPRING

ANNA DAVID:

By her twenties, Anna found herself unemployable and addicted to sleeping pills and cocaine. Today, she's nearly 10 years sober, the author of four books and the host of the Playboy show "Swing", a series that starts airing in February, 2011. Her message - about recovering from addiction and maintaining healthy relationships through honest self-assessment and letting go of control - is delivered with both humor and insight, and her strength has helped thousands across the globe.

BARRY SMITH:

"Jobs" and "careers" are two very different things. The primary difference usually involves a certain amount of passion, training and benefits-like health insurance and paid vacation. Award-winning performer Barry Smith has had a lot of (odd) jobs throughout his lifetime, and with each and every one, he eventually found his way to a meaningful career. Told using Smith's signature multimedia "Modern Monologue" style, this presentation examines the employment consequences and rewards of a life spent following one's bliss.

ANDY SAMBERG:

ANDY SAMBERG's comedic genius makes him a popular choice to do speaking engagements on college campuses. In his moderated lecture, "Conversation, Clips and Q&A: An Evening with Andy Samberg" he uses a format similar to Inside the Actors Studio, weaving his behind the scenes stories from SNL, The Lonely Island and some of the hottest comedy movies of our generation, with video clips and finishes with audience Q&A. In addition to being on SNL for the past five years, he has also been seen in movies such as I Love You Man and Hot Rod.

SHAWN & GWENN:

Shawn has HIV. Gwenn doesn't. They keep it that way. When Shawn and Gwenn met, they never thought their relationship would be an open book or a tool for HIV education. But that's exactly what happened. Since 2000, Shawn and Gwenn have been educating together, using their relationship as a way to talk about the issues of sexual health. By combining humor and candor, they've successfully engaged tens-of-thousands of college students, and have shared their story with millions of people. Shawn's memoir, My Pet Virus, was published by the Penguin Group.

MICHAEL GERSH:

As a victim/survivor of a drunken driving incident that killed his mother and almost himself when he was 8 weeks old, The Magic of Life is a different type of alcohol awareness program. By combining stand-up comedy, audience participation, and his personal story, students will leave the program with a different perspective. With 15 years in Higher Ed (Kent State U.), and a background as a collegiate swimmer, he knows firsthand how alcohol can impact a student's life.
